BBQ MOVIE FEATURING KANSAS CITY'S AMERICAN ROYAL WORLD SERIES OF BBQ COMPETITION, "SMOKE & RIBBONS: A DOCUMENTARY" RELEASED ON AMAZON PRIME VIDEO

December 21, 2017

ORLANDO, Florida – "Smoke & Ribbons: A Documentary" follows two teams who compete in the American Royal World Series of BBQ Competition held annually in Kansas City, MO. The film's website is www.smokeandribbons.com.

This film documents the judging process and criteria at the American Royal, featuring Ardie Davis, aka Remus Powers, PhB, and other members of the American Royal Association.

The featured teams, Burnt Finger BBQ and Social Smokers BBQ Squad, have both built their own strong followings and take center stage throughout the film. Viewers can relive the highs and lows of their experiences at the American Royal. The documentary film has been released through Amazon Prime Video with free streaming for Amazon Prime members.

This film is ideal for BBQ lovers, foodies, and food show fans while aiming to win a broad audience. It highlights the competitive spirit and skill of these two teams who are looking to achieve their best results, and are also competing against each other and hoping to outscore hundreds of other teams.

Producer and director, Craig Remsburg, previously created, directed, and produced a 5-episode TV series on the culture of college football fan tailgating. For more information about the film and media production company, visit www.remyproductions.com.
